

Beyond the Stars

BY CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

“Charles Hanson Towne was a well-known editor, author and poet. A local celebrity, he was considered by many to be the quintessential New Yorker. Besides editing such magazines as Smart Set, Delineator, McClure’s, Designer, and Harper’s Bazaar, Towne also taught poetry at Columbia University, his most notable student being author J.D. Salinger. At the age of 63, Town joined the company of the Broadway hit, Life with Father, and at 68 wrote his autobiography, So Far, So Good.”
